ORIGIN OF FAMILIAR PHRASES.

THE LAST FEATHER WHICH BREAKS THE HORSE'S BACK.

This phrase was first written by Bramhall in 1645, in consequence of a conversation between Hobbes and himself, but was not published until 1655. The paragraph in which it appears (Abp. Bramhall's "Vindication of True Liberty Against Mr. Hobbes") is as follows: "The last dictate of the judgment concerning the good or bad that may follow on any action is not properly the whole cause, but the last part of it, and yet may be said to produce the effect necessarily in such a manner as the last feather may be said to break a horse's back, when there were so many laid on before as there wanted but that to do it."

DURANCE VILE.

This literary wall-o'-the-wisp has been traced to Burns and Smollett. It originally appeared, however, in Johnes' "Froissart." Describing the capture of St. Venant, in 1383, by the troops under the command of the Bishop of Norwich, Froissart says that Sir William de Melle, who defended the place, was permitted by his captor to return to France as a prisoner on parole, "according to the manner in which all French and English gentlemen behave to one another in similar cases; but not so the Germans, who, whenever they take a prisoner, throw him into durance vile, loaded with irons, in order to gain a more considerable ransom."

THUG.

The word "thug," now so generally used to denote the "shoulder hitters" and thieves of our large cities, is derived from the Hindoo "thagana," to deceive.

MASON AND DIXON'S LINE.

On the 4th of August, 1763, Thomas and Richard Penn and Lord Baltimore, being together in London, agreed with Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, two surveyors, to mark, run, settle and fix the boundary line between Maryland on one hand and Delaware and Pennsylvania on the other. They accomplished their work to within thirty-six miles, six chains and fifty links, when they were told by their Indian escorts that it was the will of the Sioux nation that the surveys should cease, and they determined accordingly. Mason died in Pennsylvania in 1787; Dixon died in Durham, Eng., in 1777.

EMERALD ISLE.

The epithet, as applied to Ireland, was first used by Dr. William Drennan, author of "Glendalough," and other poems, who was born at Belfast, May 23, 1754.

PETER'S PENCE.

Offa, a Saxon Prince, to ingratiate himself in favor of the sovereign Pontiff, engaged to pay him a yearly donation for the support of an English college at Rome; and, in order to raise the sum, he imposed a tax of a penny on each house possessed of 30 pence a year. This imposition, being afterward levied on all England, was commonly denominated Peter's pence.

TRUE BLUE.

The first assumption of this phrase was led by the Covenanters, in opposition to the scarlet badge of Charles I., and hence it was taken up by the troops of Leslie and Montrose in 1639. The adoption of the color was one of those religious pedersties into which the Covenanters, in a pharisaical observance of the scriptural letter and the usage of the Hebrews, distinguished themselves. And thus they named their children Habakkuk and Zernbabeel, and their chapels Zion and Ebenezer. They decorated their persons with ribbons, because the following sumptuary precept was given in the law of Moses: "Speak to the children of Israel, and tell them to make themselves fringes on the borders of their garments, putting in them ribbons of blue." Numbers, xv, 38.

OLD HARRY.

The popular attributes of the evil one were a human form, with horns, tail, and a cloven foot. These are very probably derived from the Grecian fables, and from the representations of the Greek satyrs and Roman fauns—the gods of the mountains and groves; and it is also probable that "Old Harry" was originally "Old Hairy." The satyrs were said to have hair like goats. "Shock" is a head of rough hair—a rough-haired dog. So there is doubtless an affinity between "Old Harry" or "Old Hairy," and "Old Shock," the English name given to the demon supposed to haunt roadsides and wild pathways. "The Lord Harry" may allude to the Scriptural terms, "the god of the world," the Prince of the powers of darkness.

JUST THE CHEESE.

This familiar vulgarism, used in commendation of a thing, is a mere Orientalism, meaning "just the thing," from cheese, Hindostanee for "a thing."

GONE TO POT.

The phrase comes from a tailor in Samarcand, who, living near a cemetery, had an earthen vessel on his counter into which he cast a pebble whenever a corpse was carried past, and then kept count of the daily interments. At last his own time came, and his neighbors, on inquiry after him, answered, "He has gone to pot, also."

TO GO THE WHOLE HOG.

Generally set down as an Americanism, but undoubtedly of Irish origin. Previous to the year 1825, when the Irish metallic currency was completely assimilated to the English, the silver shilling circulated in Ire and was equivalent to thirteen copper pennies, whereas a silver shilling of England was of the value of 12 pence. In Ireland the shilling was sometimes called "a thirteen," from the number of pence it contained, and was sometimes called "a hog." When a man had a convivial idea of spending an entire shilling on a friend, which figuratively meant that he would not be chary of expense, he was said to "go the whole hog."

Indian Strategy in Business.

When the Carson and Colorado railroad treated for the right of way through the Indian reservation at Walker lake, Nevada, the Indians agreed to receive, in full pay, $700 and the free shipment forever over the road of any fish or other produce which they might wish to bring to market between Hawthorne and the Mound house. Walker lake is swarming with fine trout. When the new road reaches it the Indians will be the bosses of the fish market of the State. They say that if Mr. Yerington had known how many fish they can catch in a day he would never have entered into such a contract. The Indians laid their wires for this thing long ago, and when Mr. Yerington visited Walker lake they put up a job on him. They invited him to spend a day fishing, which he did, but gave him a bait which fish absolutely avoid. Several of the bucks also fished with him, some using no bait at all. The result of the day's toil was a small white-fish and a couple of half-pound trout. The savages pretended that the day's sport had been very fine, and got up a big dance in honor of the catch, remarking that the fishing had never been so good for years. In an unguarded moment he signed the fish contract.—Carson Appeal.

A LONG ISLAND girl stuffed the arm of an old coat with hay, placed it around her waist, and sat near a window in the soft twilight. The other girls in the neighborhood are dying with envy.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JAN. 4, 1882.

The Ashland Murderers.

A brief despatch to the BULLETIN from United States Deputy Marshal James Heflin announced that the persons who committed the horrible crime at Ashland Ky., a short time ago, had been arrested by him and safely lodged in the jail at Catlettsburg. There were three persons connected with the murder, and one of them made a confession that led to the arrest of the wretches. Two of them are married men with families and all of them are residents of the community where the crime was committed. They are now in the jail at Catlettsburg where there is much excitement, and at last accounts it seemed very certain they would be taken from the jail and lynched. Mr. Heflin, who has been instrumental in bringing these brutes to justice, his friends in Maysville will be pleased to learn, is entitled to the reward of $1,000, which had been offered for their apprehension.

ARNOLD will fail in one respect in which Grant was eminently successful and that is nepotism. He has only one son, a mere boy, and only one brother, and he is already an officer of the government.

BILL ARE thus explains the protective tariff: One time there was an old man who had ten children and lots of grandchildren, and one of the boys was a shoemaker, and the old man said that all the other children should buy their shoes of Bob at $2 a pair just to encourage him and keep the money in the family. Every day there was some outsider come knocking at the outside gate with just as good shoes at a dollar a pair, but still they all had to buy from Bob, and Bob got rich off his own kinsfolks, and that's the way with the tariff. It is a good thing for Bob, but mighty hard on the rest of the family.

THE South at the present time seems to be a most inviting field for the establishment of manufacturing industries the states of North Carolina, Georgia and Virginia especially. The two former States have in successful operation more than a hundred cotton mills, a large number of woolen mills, shoe factories and establishments for the manufacture of many articles the South has hitherto imported from the northern States. The abundant supply of raw material conveniently at hand, the low price of labor and the wide territory for the sale of the products of these industries, make almost certain the success of all such enterprises, when inaugurated by practical and enterprising men. In Virginia also has the spirit of enterprise manifested itself and in nearly all the large cities and towns of the commonwealth have factories been established successfully and their products accorded a high place in the general markets of the country. In the city of Richmond alone, as we learn from the Dispatch, there are 675 factories which employ 17,648 operatives and use an aggregate capital of over $11,000,000. These works sold during the past year $32,802,756, or nearly $9,000,000 more than was sold the previous year. Throughout the entire southern country there has been an increase in trade, the shipping has nearly doubled, and railroad freight and passenger traffic has increased and indeed nearly all other departments of business exhibit a like degree of prosperity. The South is slowly getting out of the ruts in which she was left war.

He knew nothing about the terrible tragedy until told of it by a detective. The theory that he had anything to do with the murder is now exploded.

The electric light is getting to be unpopular at Philadelphia, and there is some talk of forbidding its use there. It is said to be dangerous to property, and in support of this, it is stated that no less than twenty-five buildings were set fire to in one day recently by the wires attached to the apparatus.

A man can beat a railroad car
Who runs by aid of money.

Democratic Precinct Meeting.

Pursuant to a call issued by the Democratic Executive Committee of Mason county, the Democracy of Maysville, precinct No. 1, will meet at the Court House on Saturday, January 7th, 1882, at two o'clock p. m., for the purpose of selecting ten delegates to represent said precinct in a county convention that meets in the Court House in this city, January 9th, 1882, for the purpose of nominating candidates to be voted for to fill the various county offices at the ensuing August election. A full attendance of the Democracy is desired.

JOHN W. ALEXANDER,

Ch'm Maysville precinct No. 1.

The ball at Neptune Hall, Tuesday evening, given by some of our young gentlemen, was well attended and passed off most pleasantly.

The entire receipts from the Bazar entertainment amounted to $855.01. Something was realized in addition to the receipts reported elsewhere.

A SUBSTANTIAL Christmas gift was that of the Maysville Baptist church to their pastor, the Rev. J. K. Pace: A purse containing several five dollar gold pieces and other money, besides other gifts as good as money.

A woman fell overboard from the Scotia on the last trip and was rescued by one of the deck-hands. After being wrung out she presented the boat with a bill of $5 for damage to her clothing from contact with the water.

The following marriage licenses were issued since our last report:

Susan D. Bently to Chas. S. Fowler, both of this county.

COLORADO.

Fannie McMurry to J. Madison Fields, of this county.

Mr. Wm. Burrows, a well known citizen of Maysville, died at his home on Front street, about nine o'clock Tuesday evening. He was a member the Neptune Fire Company and through respect to his memory, the ball announced for to-night, has been postponed.

Mr. Willis Hisey, aged sixty-one years a native of Greenbriar, W. Va., died at his residence at Vanceburg, on the evening of the 2nd inst. Mr. Hisey, was a much respected citizen, and was twice elected jailer over popular opponents. His death has caused profound sorrow in the community.

LAST Monday being the birthday of Mrs. Lou Ross, of East Maysville, her friends took advantage of the occasion to favor her with a genuine surprise party. They brought a number of useful and valuable gifts, which were gratefully accepted as marks of the good will of her friends. The party was most pleasantly entertained by Mrs. Ross.

At a meeting of the Neptune Fire Company held this afternoon, a resolution was adopted inviting the other fire companies of the city, and the blacksmiths and other workmen of the several plow factories in the city, to attend the funeral of their deceased fellow member, Mr. Wm. Burrows, Thursday afternoon. They are requested to meet at the Neptune Hall at 1:45 p. m. Hancock's Reed and Brass Band will head the procession to the grave.

Bruce F. Thomas.

Mr. Bruce F. Thomas, who died at Vanceburg on the morning of the 2nd inst., in the 30th year of his age, was the only son of Judge George M. Thomas. He was a victim to dyspepsia and nervous debility of the severest type.

He sought relief by advice of his physician in the use of morphia and chloral.

On the night of the 1st his disease was aggravating and he took one dose of morphia. Not finding relief he used a portion of chloral; about four o'clock in the morning of the 2nd, he told his wife how intense his sufferings were, she got up and administered chloral to him, he instantaneously sprang from the bed and fell to the floor a corpse.

The distress and agony of his young and fond wife is painful to witness.

Judge Thomas was absent in Louisville, and his mother was attending the bedside of Mr. Elijah Thomas, father of Judge Thomas, at Sandhill.

The father of Mrs. Bruce Thomas was absent from Maysville, rendering this affliction more serious.

Mr. B. F. Thomas was one of the rising and promising lawyers of the Kentucky bar. He graduated at Oxford, O., College, passed examination at the Harvard, Mass., and Cincinnati Law Schools with honor and credit.

His life was one the earnest law student seeks, quietude and seclusion.

In his social relations he surrounded his home with those fond of music and literary attainments.

He was a natural musician of extended amateur culture and was conspicuous with his accomplished wife in leading the musical entertainments, especially in the M. E. church choir.

A young wife and two very interesting children mourn his premature death while a large connection and an undivided public join in condoling with his afflicted family.

A CROSS THE RIVER.

ABERDEEN.

Have your ticket punched?

Will. Petit was in town Sunday.

Miss Blair, Miss Devore and Miss Wilson have returned.

John Campbell killed his pet deer last Saturday and sold it to Pierce & McDaniel of your city.

There was a social hop at John Schlitz last Monday. All there enjoyed themselves.

There was watch meeting at Mrs. R. Brookover's and at Miss Modie Midghall's Saturday night.

The K. of P. will have a public installation and supper to-morrow night.

Everybody had a good time at "Our Boys" dance Friday evening.

There was a taffy party at the home of the Misses Riedle, Monday evening.

Who says Aberdeen is not an enjoyable little place?

Several boys were fined for assault last Monday evening. We think if the marshal would watch at night he could "rope" in a number of men who make more noise than a dozen boys.

Mrs. Bradford, of Ripley, O., was here for a few days this week.

Some of our young ladies kept open house Sunday and Monday.

Preaching next Sunday evening. Boys, we want you all to go and hear it.

There will be a wedding at the M. E. church next Sunday night.

We suppose those certain parties who have been trying to bulldoze the band boys out of their room, will rest contented, as they have failed to get them out. Their time is up on the 1st of May, when they will cheerfully give it up, but not until then.

The following changes in the ownership of land have been recorded at the office of the Clerk of the County Court since our last report:

George Votter and wife to Mary Jane Robinson, lot No. 71 in Woodville. Consideration $100, an old deed.

S. L. Spoute and wife to Wm. Kirker an undivided half interest in lot opposite Ripley, O., and the ferry privileges across the river from that point. Consideration $800.

There are several inches of snow on the ground and the sleighs are out the first time this season.

Storm at the Signal Station, Mt. Washington.

Noticing that the sides of the summit were strewn with boards, beams, and debris of all sorts, my guide explained that what I saw was the result of the great January gale which had demolished the large shed used as an engine-house, scattering the loose fragments far and wide. I begged him to give me his recollection of it.

"During the forenoon preceding the gale we observed nothing very unusual; but the clouds kept sinking and sinking until the summit was quite above them. Late in the afternoon my comrades, Sergeant M—, came to where I was lying abed sick, and said: 'There is going to be the devil to pay, so I guess I'll make everything snug.'

"By nine in the evening the wind had increased to one hundred miles an hour, with heavy sleet. At midnight the velocity of the storm was one hundred and twenty miles, and the exposed thermometer recorded twenty degrees below zero. With the stove red, we could hardly get it above freezing inside the house. Water froze within three feet of the fire—in fact, where you are now sitting.

"At this time the noise outside was deafening. About one o'clock the wind rose to one hundred and fifty miles. It was now blowing a hurricane. The wind, gathering up all the loose ice of the mountain, dashed it against the house with one continued roar. I lay wondering how long the building would stand this when all at once came a crash. M—shouted to me to get up, but I had tumbled out in a hurry on hearing the glass go. You see, I was dressed, to keep myself warm in bed.

"Our united efforts were hardly equal to closing the storm shutters from the inside, but we finally succeeded, though the light went out when the wind came in, and we worked in the dark."

He rose to show me how the shutters, of thick oak, were first secured by an iron bar, and secondly by strong wooden buttons firmly screwed in the window-frame.

"We had scarcely done this," resumed Doyle, "and were shivering over the fire, when a heavy gust of wind again burst open the shutters, as easily as if they had never been fastened at all. We sprang to our feet. After a hard tussle we again secured the windows, by nailing a cleat to the floor, against which one end of a board was fixed, using the other end as a lever. You understand?" I nodded. "Well, even then it was all we could do to force the shutters back into place. But we did it. We had to do it."

"The rest of the night was passed in momentary expectation that the building would be blown into Tuckermans, and we with it. At four o'clock in the morning the wind registered one hundred and eighty-six miles. It had shifted then from east to northeast. From this time it steadily fell to ten miles, at nine o'clock. This was the biggest blow ever experienced on the mountain.

"Suppose the house had gone, and the hotel stood fast, could you have effected an entrance into the hotel?" I asked.

"We could not have faced the gale."

"Not for a hundred feet? not in a matter of life and death?"

"Impossible. The wind would have lifted us from our feet like bags of wool. We would have been dashed against the rocks and smashed like egg-shells," was the quiet reply.

"And so for some hours you expected to be swept into eternity?"

"We did what we could. Each wrapped himself in blankets and quilts, binding these tightly around him with ropes, to which were attached bars of iron, so that if the house went by the board we might stand a chance—a slim one—of anchoring somewhere, somehow."

Somewhere, indeed!

When, on the following morning I busied myself getting ready to go down the mountain, I heard a profound sigh, followed by some half andible words, proceeding from the adjoining room. These words rang in my ears all that day:

"Ah, this terrible solitude!"—S. A. Drake, in Warper's Magazine.

Houses more than 150 years old are said to be numerous in Rhode Island.
